

SIX NAZI SABOTEURS EXECUTED

GANDHI AGAIN APPEALS FOR U. S. SUPPORT

Asks Quick Action To Permit
India To Use Freedom for Allied Cause.

BULLETIN
By The Associated Press
BOMBAY, India, Aug. 8.—The All-India Congress committee in convention here today endorsed Mohandas K. Gandhi's Britain must quit India resolution by a large majority.

BOMBAY, Aug. 8.—Mohandas K. Gandhi appealed to America today to act "while there is time" to bring about recognition of Indian independence and permit Indians "to use their liberty in favor of the allied cause."

Shortly afterward, the All-India Congress committee ruled out of order an amendment to Gandhi's "British quit India" resolution that had been moved by Pandit Bakshi Sharnam, proposing an immediate campaign against the British India Government.

Gandhi made his appealing a letter to American friends, signed by the All-India Congress committee for a session which may be the Indian leader's "go ahead sign" to launch a campaign of civil disobedience designed to end British domination over India.

The letter, which will be published in Gandhi's newspaper tomorrow, was delivered exclusively to American correspondents today. Although Gandhi had said earlier that he would give Britain time to make further proposals before launching the campaign, little hope of such proposals was held after yesterday's meeting.

Pledges Sincerity
Gandhi appealed to Americans to accept as sincere his statement that the request for Britain to withdraw from power and grant freedom to India was done with the purpose of vitalizing Indian defense.

"I would not have asked my country to invite Great Britain to withdraw her rule over India," he said, "if I had not seen at once that for the sake of Great Britain and the allied cause it was necessary for Britain boldly to perform the duty of freeing India from bondage."

"Without this essential act of tardy justice, Britain could not justify her position before world opinion, which is not vocal, but which is there nevertheless."

The Nationalist leader said that "Singapore, Malaya and Burma must be that disaster must not be repeated in India."

"I want you to look upon the immediate recognition of Indian independence as a war measure of first class magnitude," he concluded.

Gandhi's appeal came after the British government already had taken steps to assure the flow of essential commodities to India's millions in the event of a general strike in a non-violent revolt.

The congress approval of the resolution authorizing the discipline campaign by the Congress was regarded as certain.

Cites Malaya Disasters
Gandhi said a repetition of the disasters of Malaya and Singapore could not be averted in India "unless Britain trusts the people of India to use their liberty in favor of the allied cause."

"By that supreme act of justice," he said, "Britain would have been able to cause for the British Government of India."

"That is worth all the battleships and airships that you can produce," he said.

Asserting that "false propaganda has been American ears," he said, "You have made common cause with Great Britain. You have therefore disown responsibility for anything that her representatives do in India."

High School Coach Employed

Victor Dorris, Former O. S. U. Freshman Grid and Basketball Head, To Succeed Williams.

Victor Dorris, 39, former freshman coach of football and basketball coach of football and basketball was employed to succeed William O. Williams as football coach and boys' physical education director at Harding High school. Mr. Williams resigned last week to accept a position as coach and instructor at University School in Columbus.

The announcement was made late yesterday by Supt. E. E. Holt, after talking with members of the board of education and receiving their authorization of a contract with Mr. Dorris, which he accepted.

The new coach was highly recommended by the department of physical education at Ohio State university, the superintendent said.

Praised by Association
Prof. R. C. Larkins of the department recommended him as having "an indomitable spirit" and as one who "can be counted on to tackle any job and the possibility of his accomplishing his purposes would be excellent."

Dr. Willard P. Ashbrook of the department termed him a "valuable addition" to the Marion teaching staff and said that "with his varsity experience in football and baseball and his knowledge of methods of coaching, I am sure he could do you a wonderful job as a coach."

Fine Record at Granville
For the last two years Mr. Dorris has been coach of the Granville high school football team and under his direction the team has been undefeated. In addition the superintendent said, he put out an outstanding health and education program in the Granville high school and did a great deal of remedial work among boys not before interested in sports.

Mr. Dorris has varsity letters in football and baseball at Ohio State for the years 1937 and 1938. He played on the teams three years, alternating in football between half-back and full-back positions, and in addition played basketball and participated in the track program.

Played at Bellaire
At the Bellaire, O. high school, of which he is a graduate, he was an outstanding football player and was captain of the team one year.

He was graduated from Ohio State in 1938, with the degree of bachelor of science in education, and in 1940 he won his master of arts degree. It was in 1939 and 1940, while he was working on his master's degree, that he was freshman coach of football and basketball.

Mr. Dorris is married and has a 7-month-old daughter. The family will move to Marion as soon as a home can be found, Mr. Holt said yesterday.

In announcing the new coach, Mr. Holt said he had talked with Mr. Dorris here on Thursday and had interviewed two other candidates for the position.

A second coaching position to fill arose yesterday when Kenneth L. Sampson, coach at Vernon Heights Junior High school, tendered his resignation to accept the position of head football coach at the Upper Sandusky High school. Mr. Sampson came here from Toledo a year ago.

NAZI NEARING RED OIL FIELDS IN CAUCASUS

In North Hitler's Forces Edge
Closer to Stalingrad Industries.

By The Associated Press
Adolf Hitler's drive for the black gold of the Caucasus neared its first major goal today as the Germans smashed at the approaches of the Malkop oil fields, 170 miles south of Rostov, while in the north the invaders edged closer to the great steel city of Stalingrad.

The situation is very tense, Soviet dispatches said referring to the Caucasus.

For the first time, the Russians acknowledged that the Germans had lunged far down the west side of the Caucasus land bridge to the middle east after a major breakthrough in army defenses.

Dispatches to Red Star, the Russian army newspaper, said Marshal Semenov Timoshenko's armies had made a heroic but unsuccessful attempt to stem the Nazi onslaught in the loop of the Kuban river above Malkop, in the Armavir sector, 160 miles south of Rostov and east of Krasnodar.

Claim Town Captured
German field headquarters asserted that Nazi troops had captured Kurgannaya, only 30 miles from Malkop, and the important rail junction of Armavir, 60 miles northwest of Malkop.

The Nazi high command said German columns also had broken through Russian tank and trench positions 20 miles north of Krasnodar, 50 miles northeast of Malkop, and declared:

"Relentless pursuit of the enemy continues."

German planes striking ahead of the land forces were reported to have attacked Soviet columns on the march, transport and embarkations on the Black sea coast.

The German communiqué did not explain the Soviet "embarkations," but the implication seemed to be that the Russians were attempting to withdraw from a trap.

Nazi headquarters said German troops launched a fresh assault on Kalach, 50 miles northwest of Stalingrad, in the battle of the Don river bend.

But the gravest danger centered on the Malkop oil field, which produces seven per cent of Russia's oil.

With the invaders so near, Soviet demolition engineers presumably were ready to blow up the big field.

Nazis Mass Tanks
Masses of German tanks were reported thundering into action along the sun-parched steppes, while clouds of dive-bombers hammered the Soviet defenses.

British military sources said the Germans were throwing two panzer armies and two infantry armies of 10 divisions each into the drive. The two armored armies totaled between 10 and 15 divisions with about 4,000 tanks, while the infantry armies totaled approximately 300,000 troops.

There is little doubt that the bulk of the German armored force in Russia is concentrated on this (Caucasus) front," military experts said.

Red Army headquarters said the Russians fell back in the Armavir sector after inflicting bloody losses on the Nazis. In one sector alone, the Russians said, 340 German tanks were destroyed and 1,000 Germans left dead on the battlefield.

On the Stalingrad front, the Soviet command conceded fresh German gains as Nazi tanks cut a wedge into Red army defenses in the Koteinsk sector, 95 miles southwest of the Volga industrial center, and turned north along the rail line to Stalingrad.

The invaders were attacking furiously also in the Kletskaya sector, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad, but the Russians declared they were holding fast. A single Red army unit was credited with destroying more than 100 Nazi tanks in throwing back 17 German attacks below Kletskaya.

Conference Secret
Developments in the reported "save Russia and win the war" council in Moscow were hidden from Germany, while the German took new measures to prepare western Europe against an allied invasion.

Stockholm dispatches said German occupation authorities had ordered a state of alert along the entire Norwegian coast and had made arrangements to evacuate the entire civilian population at short notice.

The Nazis warned all Norwegian that anyone aiding the Allies would be executed immediately.

German night raiders landed on the coast of Norway, but the attack was repulsed.

2 ARE SAVED FROM PAYING DEATH PENALTY

First Went to Death in Electric Chair at Noon, White House Says.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The White House announced today that six of eight Nazi saboteurs had been executed today, the first going to death by the electric chair at noon.

The two saboteurs spared were Ernest F. Burger, who was given a life prison sentence at hard labor and George John Dasch, sentenced to 30 years at hard labor.

These, a White House statement said, had prison terms granted them rather than death sentences "because of their assistance to the government of the United States in the apprehension and conviction of the others."

The six who paid the death penalty for coming to the United States in Nazi U-boats to burn and blast vital war installations were electrocuted in the District of Columbia jail.

The executions were carried out a month to the day after a military commission began trying them on espionage and sabotage charges. The eight men came equipped with explosives and materials for incineration, four landing in Florida and four on Long Island.

Text of Announcement
The text of the White House announcement:

"The President completed his review of the findings and sentences of the military commission appointed by him on July 2, 1942 which tried the eight Nazi saboteurs."

"The President approved the judgment of the military commission that the six of the prisoners were guilty and that they be given the death sentence by electrocution."

"However, there was a unanimous recommendation by the commission, concurred in by the attorney general and the judge advocate general of the army, that the sentence of two of the prisoners be commuted to life imprisonment because of their assistance to the government of the United States in the apprehension and conviction of the others."

"The commutation directed by the President in the case of the judge was to confinement at hard labor for life in the case of Dasch. The sentence was commuted by the President to confinement at hard labor for thirty years."

"The electrocutions began at noon today."

"Six of the prisoners were electrocuted. The other two confined to prison."

"The record in all eight cases will be sealed until the end of the war."

Six Electrocuted
The six who were electrocuted were Edward John Kerling, Herbert Haupt, Richard Quilman, Werner Thiel, Herman Otto Neubauer and Henry Harm Heinck.

The announcement of the executions was handed reporters by Stephen Early, presidential secretary.

Several miles away, reporters outside the district jail watched ambulances drive into the prison yard at 1:34 p.m. No official word was given there that the six Nazis had been electrocuted, however.

The District of Columbia coroner, Dr. Magruder MacDonald, had come to the prison shortly before noon to inspect the bodies of the six.

Several medical officers also were on hand. From 11 a.m. on, virtually all lights in the prison had been extinguished.

Talking to reporters, a guard said that six stretchers had been put in the prison.

How many of the saboteurs might receive the death penalty continued. President Roosevelt's secret but there had been indications of the sentence of the trial before the military commission that two of the accused might receive clemency.

The district electric chair was in readiness if the military custodians of the prisoners demanded its use.

In mid-morning, Presidential Secretary Stephen Early would say only to reporters:

"On the question of the eight prisoners in the district jail, there is as yet no news for you."

Early would not indicate when there might be some news. Yesterday President Roosevelt said he had not yet completed his review of the findings.

Silence Prevails
Since 8 a. m., a curtain of strict military silence had hung over the building.

U. S. TOLD TO FIGHT HARDER

OWI Says Weapon Output Below Schedule; Warns People of Consequences.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—A gloomy picture of America's war effort to date was laid before the nation today in a warning by the office of war information that materials are failing to reach the fighting fronts in the time and the volume needed to win.

Reviewing the military and production situation, OWI asserted that night that output of fighting planes, tanks, most types of artillery and naval vessels fell behind schedule in June and expressed doubt that "all of us realize how hard we are going to have to work to win."

"To win as fast as we must fight it today," OWI said, "and we are fighting it that hard."

A similar tone was expressed in Australia where war correspondent Norman Stockton of the Melbourne Herald asserted: "Our allies have got to realize the 'grim fact' that we are still fighting a losing war and that there is no possibility of an offensive from this country until real material aid is forthcoming."

MacArthur Lacks Materials
Stockton described General Douglas MacArthur as an "offensive-minded leader who apparently could not take the offensive because of a lack of materials."

Simultaneously, Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario predicted in a speech at Fergus, Ont., that "we are going to have an attack on the Atlantic coast very soon."

And in Seattle, Rep. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), a member of the naval affairs committee, said in an interview that the Japanese already are at war with Russia and "have sunk several Russian ships in the Pacific."

The ground they were carrying American materials said.

OWI asserted that "we could lose this war" and declared that while some individual Americans had made great sacrifices "as a nation we are not yet more than ankle deep in the war."

Public Attitude Wrong
"Too many people," it continued, "seem to feel that we are fighting this war out of a surplus of surplus of resources and productive capacity, a surplus of time. That is not true. We have plenty of some resources, in other words."

Ultimate Victory

A SERMONETTE
By REV. J. RAPHAEL DALLAS
Pastor of Oakland Evangelical Church
TEXT: Romans 8:13—"For the earnest expectation of the creation waiteth for the revealing of the sons of God."

THERE is no doubt but that there are more people longing for world peace today than before. Yet at the same time we are running true to form as was the case during the last world struggle, and the great masses are evidently indifferent to the things concerning that system of life, which can only bring peace. We might as well face this fact, i. e. that "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." No nation that forgets God or lives contrary to the principles of Christianity can hope to live either in peace among themselves or with other nations.

Jesus gave us all the light we need but we still walk in darkness. And isn't it strange that the very people who continue on in sin and neglect of the church are the very ones who want peace? And the world will never be able to pay its debt to the church of Jesus Christ. Here is the hope of the world.

The very creation longs for the way of God. When the night is darkest we long for the light. When the storm is loudest we long for peace. When the sea is roughest we long for the calm. When the winter is coldest we long for spring. When the world is wildest we long for deliverance. The Bible tells us of "a world wherein dwelleth righteousness." Now the whole earth seems overgrown with thistles, briars, thorns and pests and insects, and everything under the water lives on other creatures under the water so that death is everywhere there and there is a weasel for every dove, and fear the father of hate stalks everywhere among men and beasts. MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Cox
CHAPTER 45
Tables Turned

"WE'VE got to stop him," Joyce said.

"Well, stop him," Murdock started for the door and terror struck at Joyce's anger and she ran after him, seizing his arm.

"Oh, please," she whispered. "He's a gun. He must have. The way he sat there on the sofa all the time without moving. Don't you remember how his arms were crossed with his hands out of sight? It must be something like that or Ward wouldn't have said those things. It's Della he's afraid of."

"Thorndike, huh?" Fenner said. "The whole thing was an act." Murdock's face was somber and taut. "We've got to get in but—"

"We can't get in," Joyce said. "I fixed the lock. When I came out I pressed the button that regulates it."

She heard Fenner grudge; then Kent had turned. He gave her a quick hard look, and without warning, took her face in his hands. He kissed her roughly, his lips bruising hers, and just as suddenly released her.

"Good girl," he said. "Fenner blocked him off. This is for me," he said. "Watch yourself!" And then he was at the door.

Joyce stood where she was, unable to move, unable even to breathe. She saw the detective's hand come away from his coat, the snub-nosed gun gleam darkly in his grasp. Somehow she was aware that Hester had not gone but had come up behind her. She did not see her; she saw nothing but Fenner's left hand reaching for the knob.

She watched, fascinated and immobile as the detective pained the doorknob. She could see him pull it towards him, wrenched his wrist turn. She listened, every muscle tense. There was no sound; it did not seem possible that silence could be so absolute and yet—

The wrist stopped turning. It began to push forward. The door opened a crack, widening slowly until all at once the panel was back and Fenner was moving forward and saying: "Drop it! Drop it!"

"Kent was at the detective's heels, and she had to go too. She could not see the whole room but between the heads of the two ahead of her she saw enough."

Della and Ward Allen stood before the little sofa, staring first at Dean Thorndike and then at the door. Ward's arm was about her waist and in that first instant Thorndike was facing them. Joyce could not see his gun, but knew somehow that it was there.

She saw his head jerk round and then his body. She saw his startled stare, the recoil of his facial muscles; then the mouth drew back and there was an explosion of sound and Fenner was moving up.

Kent was at his shoulder and she could see better now and took a step, and someone was crowding her from behind.

Something thudded to the floor and with the sound Thorndike had wheeled and was diving for a gun that had dropped from his fingers, stooping, reaching desperately with his left hand.

Fenner's voice hit hard and hot. "Don't touch it! Let it lay!"

Thorndike never stopped. In one continuous movement he swept the gun and turned, his face twisted and stiff. Then, once again there came that explosion of sound and this time the room seemed to rock under Joyce and her ears rang with the form. Thorndike staggered and sat down hard, then the room was very quiet.

Fenner moved slowly up to him. The fallen gun was not far from his hand and the detective looked at one side with his nose and picked it up.

"That's what you get," he said, speaking in no other particular, "for trying to do a killer a favor. You plug him in the arm and then you have to cool him off anyway. I should've known better."

He glanced about, putting his gun away, and went over to the telephone.

Joyce heard him talking but for another second or two she could not take her eyes from Thorndike. His face was no longer twisted, and stiff. There was a curious look of surprise in his eyes and the muscles of his jaw were slack. He glanced down at his right hand. There was a trickle of blood on the back of it, but though he tried he could not raise it after that he put his left hand inside his coat and sat like that, holding his chest.

Just Nerves
Joyce shuddered as reaction shook her. Weakness was eating her strength, and while she fought for control of her senses she heard Della.

"Oh, it's so horrible," she sobbed, "so horrible!"

Ward turned her quickly away and his arms went about her. Joyce saw her slump and for a moment thought she had fainted. Then the sobbing quieted and her hands came up and crushed Ward's lapels and he bent his head. He began to talk, his lips close to her ear and his voice soft and husky and unintelligible to anyone but Della.

Kent's arm slid around Joyce's waist. Suddenly she became aware of his strength and out her arms about his neck because she could not stop her trembling. He pressed her tight and she felt his hand stroke her hair.

"Steady," he said. "She held to him for long seconds and then released her arms and look up, aware now that her eyes were burning and his image blurred."

"I'm sorry," she said. "Just nerves."

"You were magnificent," he smiled. "I'm sort of proud of you."

Ward Allen was talking louder. "Won't you go in and lie down awhile, darling?"

Della shook her head. "I'd rather not, really. I'll be all right."

"I'll get a touch of brandy, then," he took her hands from his lapels and looked for a place where he could set her.

"I'll get it," Joyce said. "You stay with her."

She went to the kitchen and found the brandy. She put a little in a glass and added water. When she returned to the living room Hester was sitting on the edge of the love seat. Her face seemed older now, and make-up was gone. She looked at Joyce and said: "You were magnificent."

"I'm sort of proud of you," she smiled.

Gas Rationing Not Needed To Save Tires, Car Owners of West and Midwest Think

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 6—If the government should decide that gasoline rationing is necessary throughout the entire country in order to conserve tires, it faces the job of convincing car-owners in non-rationed areas that such a move is necessary.

Most of the car-owners in the non-rationed areas now neither expect rationing nor think it is necessary to conserve tires, a nationwide survey by the Institute discloses.

But reporters first ascertained whether or not car-owners in the country expected rationing on a nationwide basis by asking the following question: "Do you think there will be nationwide gasoline rationing in the next few months?"

Dr. Gallup

The results showed a sharp difference of opinion between car-owners residing in rationed areas and those living in non-rationed areas. In the gas-rationed East, where shortages have become increasingly critical, a majority felt that rationing would go into effect all over the country. In the other areas less than half of those questioned felt it was imminent.

Think Nationwide Gas Rationing Will Come	All U.S. Areas	Rationed Areas	Non-Rationed Areas
Think It Will Come	47%	52%	45%
Think It Will Not Come	41%	34%	44%
Undecided	12%	14%	11%

On the more important issue of the need for rationing, field reporters asked this question: "Do you think it necessary to ration gasoline throughout the country in order to conserve tires?"

Again, while car-owners in the East thought that gasoline rationing was a necessary part of the rubber conservation program, those in the non-rationed areas stood emphatically opposed to the idea.

YES	All U.S. Areas	Rationed Areas	Non-Rationed Areas
YES	49%	63%	41%
NO	44%	29%	52%
Undecided	7%	8%	7%

Sentiment of gas-rationed car-owners on the latter question is perhaps particularly significant in that they have been able to observe the effectiveness with which gas rationing acts as a tire conservator. Apparently they think it is effective.

Car-owners in non-rationed areas, on the other hand, would appear to have gasoline shortages and tire conservation confused, for a breakdown of the figures shows that car-owners living in oil-producing states such as Oklahoma, California, and Texas, etc., are more opposed to gasoline rationing than those living in non-producing areas. They are apparently thinking only in terms of the amount of gasoline available, rather than the necessity for rationing to save rubber. The closer people are to the sources of gas, the more opposed they are to any kind of gasoline rationing.

CANADIAN-PACIFIC FEARS AIR ATTACKS FROM JAPS

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 6—With Japan strengthening its foothold in the Aleutians, more than six out of every ten Pacific Coast Canadians fear an enemy air raid before the end of the summer, a Canadian Gallup Poll reveals.

Of all the provinces, British Columbia, which has already had a taste of shelling at Vancouver Island, feels itself most vulnerable to air attack, and is the only province in which the majority of the population feel an air attack is likely.

Meanwhile more than a third of Canada's urban residents are dissatisfied with the way air raid precautions are being handled in their communities.

Building Quiz

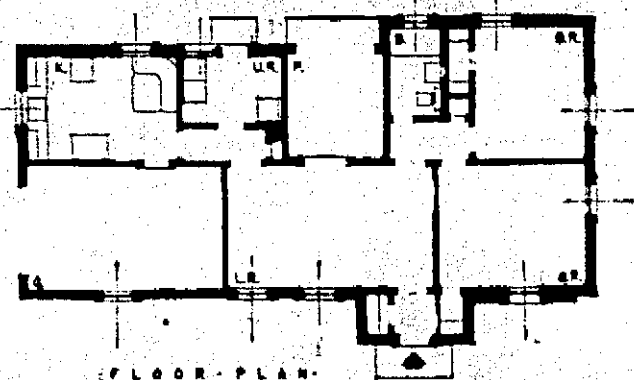

Q. My house is 17 years old. The wood roof shingles, which have been stained several times, have started to curl slightly and during a heavy rain there was a leak in a rear bedroom. The front porch also has leaked. Do you advise having these two small sections of the roof taken care of now, or would it be better to do the whole roof? Do you advise reroofing over the old shingles?

A. If the shingles are as old as the house, the roof is about ready for a reroofing job. The advisability of patching the worn-out areas depends entirely on the condition of the roof in general. New roof shingles are generally applied over old wood shingles. This not only saves the cost of ripping off the roofing, with the mess involved and damage to shrubbery, but adds to the insulating value of the roof.

REMOVING SPOTS

White spots on varnished surfaces may be removed by rubbing them lightly with a piece of flannel dampened with spirits of camphor or essence of peppermint. Having removed the spots, finish the job with polish.

Compactly Planned One-Story Dwelling

With an interior arrangement that is simple and practical, this one-story home embodies many features which will appeal to a family of average income. Compactly planned, this small house is well suited for a family which needs room but whose budget limits the size of the house. Little space is given to halls, the closets are ample, and the important utility room is of good size. An inside entrance from the garage leads into a well-lighted kitchen. The two bedrooms have cross ventilations and are pleasing in proportions. An outstanding feature is the unusually large porch with an entrance to the living room. The porch has been so well handled that it may be screened or glassed in to make another room.

Purchase of Older Home Also Within Scope of Government FHA Financing

Loans Ranging Up to 80 Per Cent of Valuation Available; Payment To Run for 20 Years.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — With current residential construction confined to meeting the housing needs of the most essential war workers, the availability of a sound financing system for the purchase of existing homes has become increasingly important to American home-buyers. Federal Housing Commissioner Abner H. Ferguson reports.

For the great majority of American families, Mr. Ferguson pointed out, existing houses represent the only supply of shelter that will be available for the duration of the war. Because of the urgent need for conserving critical war materials, new home building is of necessity being restricted to the minimum amount required to house essential war workers who move into the war industry centers to take up their place on the armament production lines, he said.

"Under these conditions, most families requiring new quarters must turn to existing houses rather than purchasing or renting a newly-constructed dwelling," the commissioner declared.

Old Homes Sound

"However, the wartime necessity does not mean that inadequate housing accommodations must be accepted. In many areas of the country, there are large numbers of sound, older houses on the market which compare favorably in comfort and design with new dwellings."

Under the FHA-insured mortgage plan, financing facilities are available in all sections of the country for the purchase of existing houses at a monthly cost equivalent to or less than rent. Existing homes meeting the FHA's minimum standards as to soundness of construction, design and location are eligible for FHA-insured mortgages of up to 80 per cent of the FHA valuation of the property, with terms extending as long as 20 years. If essential repairs are necessary to restore the property to sound condition, amounts spent for such purposes may also be financed by the mortgage.

All FHA mortgages provide for equal monthly payments to meet interest and insurance premiums and to pay off the loan in full over the prescribed term. These monthly payments also include the sums needed to pay property taxes and hazard insurance, thereby affording protection against default on these important items in the home-owner's budget. The interest rate on FHA-insured mortgages is limited to a maximum of 4½ per cent on reducing balances, plus the FHA mortgage insurance premium of ½ of 1 per cent.

Since the start of the FHA program in 1934, more than 300,000 families have used this tested method of home financing to purchase sound existing properties through insured loans totaling approximately $1,450,000,000.

Contrasting Colors

Make Steps Safer

Basement steps are the cause of many accidents in the home. One precaution is to paint the bottom step in a contrasting color. Most steps leading into the basement are painted in dark colors. Therefore, if the last or bottom step is painted white for instance, the contrasting color will show up even at night, and help prevent stumbles and missteps.

Scratches Repaired with Shellac Stick

A professional job can be done in repairing scratches on furniture through the use of a shellac stick which is obtainable at paint stores in a color to match your furniture finish. Begin by dampening a small cloth pad in alcohol and rubbing it acrosswise over the scratch, being careful not to dampen too large an area.

The alcohol will soften and smooth the sharp, broken edges. Soften the shellac stick over a match or spirit lamp and work into the scratch with a flexible knife blade until the opening is filled. Smooth the surface with very fine sandpaper and wax.

BUMPER CORN CROP FORECAST

Yield Expected To Equal 1941

Output of 31 Bushels an Acre.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Rich green leaves, long waving tassels and heavy silken sheaths averaging two to the stalk in many fields today promised another record, or near record, yield of corn to the nation's total war crop progressed through the ear-ripping stage.

High yielding hybrid seed, introduced on a large scale to American farmers only a few years ago, accounts for a greater proportion of the acreage than ever before, grain experts here reported.

This means, they said, that the crop, progressing so far under about as favorable conditions as are experienced in best seasons, has an excellent chance to equal or better last year's near record yield. In some sections of the belt, such as Iowa, the nation's biggest corn producer, the yield may exceed that of 1941.

According to latest analyses, the crop's condition for the nation as a whole is only slightly below that of a year ago, when the national yield turned out to be 31 bushels per acre, best in several years and comparing with an average of only 23.5 bushels in 1930-39. On July 1, the official estimate of yield was 29.4 bushels, compared with 29.7 on the same date last season.

Crop experts pointed out that should improvement occur between now and harvest as it did last year, which is possible because of the big hybrid acreage and excellent moisture situation, a crop of more than 2,700,000,000 bushels is likely, compared with 2,672,000,000 last year. This would be the largest crop since 1925, with the exception of the 2,931,000,000 harvest of 1932.

Recent private trade estimates have been around the 2,700,000,000 figure, although a combination of favorable weather and other crop conditions is necessary to make this promise come true. Experts do not expect corn borer infestation in some sections of the belt, mostly in the Ohio valley, to take a serious toll this year, although, unless checked, this pest could endanger the 1934 crop.

Corn, chief food of livestock, must be raised in vast quantities this year to meet wartime demand. Even though a big crop in sight, experts said feeding and industrial requirements may exceed the harvest, thus necessitating further drawing upon carry-over surplus.

GENERAL RATIONING SYSTEM PREPARED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Uncle Sam was paving the way today for a universal rationing system under which the government could determine the war-time allotments of all citizens for scarce commodities and articles.

The office of price administration disclosed it was preparing a general ration book, applicable to any article, which would enable the start of rationing "almost overnight."

Paul M. O'Leary, deputy OPA administrator in charge of rationing, explained the plan was designed to put rationing into operation immediately after the need arose. He said machinery was being set up for rationing many commodities in which there is no present need for rationing for the sake of preparedness.

OPA said the general ration books were being designed "experimentally" at the government printing office.

"If it can be made workable, we would have in our hands an instrument that would enable us to start a rationing program almost overnight, instead of having to take six to 10 weeks as in the past when we have had to let the emergencies wait while we got scores of millions of coupon books printed," O'Leary said.

Save the Ragweed, Ignore Sneeze, Doctor Implores

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 5.—Hay fever folks: A doctor stuck his chin in your direction today.

He said nice things about your attention, too: the ragweed and weed, and frowned upon those civic weed-cutting programs that usually come about this time each year.

"We need the weed to save and repair eroded soils," said Dr. Jonathan Forman, editor of the Ohio State Medical Journal. In fact, he added, it is doing a "great service for our civilization."

The doctor asserted in an article that soil had been used over and over with too little thought or effort given to replacing vital minerals extracted with each crop. Until such an endeavor is accomplished, Forman said, "we must ask the persistent ragweed to keep on nailing down and reutilizing our misused soils even though some five per cent of our population must sneeze on its account for a month in the fall."

"So don't cut the weed, he begged.

Incidentally, the doctor said the ragweed is remotely related to "the aristocrats of the flowering plants."

How much consolation is that to a sneezer?"

EIGHT NURSES IN ONE FAMILY AID WAR EFFORT

JUST THINGS

By EDNA S. DUTTON

Tops

THE male of the species won't like this but after all it was a man that publicly proclaimed it and a major general at that. Without any if's or and's he states that women are better air-raid wardens than men. Unlike men, he says, women are able to be at their posts 21 hours a day, and furthermore they are more likely to know their neighbors, the sick, the aged and the crippled. And, says he, women bring a peculiarly feminine zeal and persistence to a public task. So there

Comfort

IF YOU were a little gal of pre-teen age a few decades ago you now occasionally suffer pangs akin to envy as you gaze at these little seven and eighths. With their sunburned hair, brown faces and bodies. And there's a reason. There are those who even yet, cringe at the memories of switchings for "not wearing your sunbonnet." (Of course they had to catch you first.) Mother husbands were cool enough but the below the knee lengths hampered your speed and the long sleeves didn't provide as much freedom as you could use to advantage. Freedom of the feet was allowable and what a day it was when shoes and stockings were abandoned. But it was another story when the stone bruises came and the rusty nails took their toll. It all spelled misery when it came to putting on the Sunday hat, the long black stockings and high shoes.

Expensive

BLACKBERRY jelly should be served on gold plates and eaten with diamond studded spoons if you ask one gal who received her baptism of briars in her first jaunt to the blackberry patch in quest of berries. It sounds lavish when one is talking about it—that is if one can sort above the thought of reptiles and other vermin which seem likely to infest the patch. It was a case of pick 'em yourself or no jelly so she donned overalls, a monkey jacket, boots and took off, kettle in hand. The clouds were low, thunder rumbled and the quiet seemed ominous. She vows, however, that once one gets into the battle of briars, fear subsides and there is only the spirit of conquest. There is always the possibility, that there are much larger berries on the other side of the bush and that means just one thing, fighting through the briars and then wondering how you're ever going to get back. Everything went smoothly, although there were times when she hoped the noise she heard was a bird protesting the invasion and not the battle cry of a hungry snake, and she even stopped to inspect a pair of peaceful looking buzzes in their sporty green, red and black jackets. She had garnered her quota of berries and was starting back when—well you guessed it—she stumbled over a hidden berry stalk, down she went and over went the berry bucket. It all added up to a half hour wrestling with briar bushes to garner the lost berries. But she still believes it would be easy to become a berry picking addict.

Weddings

Announcement is being made of the marriage of Miss Ruby McCombs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. McCombs of 247 Oak street, and Ray S. Welch, son of Mrs. Alva McElowney of near Upper Sandusky, Rev. James Alexander Scott, pastor of the First Methodist church at Norwalk, read the single ring ceremony at 10 o'clock Saturday night, Aug. 1. The bride wore a dusty rose afternoon dress with a pompadour and shoulder-length veil and accessories in navy blue. Her flowers were gladioli arranged in a cascade corsage. Both the bride and bridegroom were graduated from Harding High school. They are making their home for the present on Davis street. Mr. Welch, who is employed at the Osborn Co. plant, will join the armed forces Sept. 15.

COURT NEWS

Realty Co. Sale Asked

Receivers for the Vernon Heights Realty Co., a corporation, have filed a petition in common pleas court seeking the appraisal and sale of the land involved.

The three-men thick volume, one of the largest petitions filed in many months, involves 250 separate tracts in the site, some of which are for several acres of land.

The receivership was requested by the Realty company four years ago to liquidate the business and pay off judgments and taxes. In the light of present stepped-up economic conditions and the demand for property in the area, it was deemed advisable to seek the appraisal and sale of the land at this time, an attorney for the receivers said.

The receivers, Frank M. Knapp and Edwin C. Deek, ask that the defendants set forth their claims, liens or other interest and that, failing to do so, they be barred from future action, and that the court determine and fix the priority of each claim or lien.

Defendants named are the Vernon Heights Realty Co., the Marion Cemetery association, E. M. Willets of Cardington, the Crawford Finance Co., Charles Isaly, Ralph T. Lewis and Allen I. Shaw.

W. P. Moloney, Bernard C. Moloney and Robert A. Kelly are attorneys for the receivers.

Partition Sought

Philip J. Haberman has filed a petition in common pleas court against Louise Stoll of Louisville, Ky., and others, seeking partition of two tracts of land in Bakers addition to Marion. The plaintiff, represented by W. P. Moloney, alleges a one-eighth interest in the property and asks that if a partition cannot be made the land be sold and his interest paid to him.

Low-Salaried State

Employees Given Raise

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 8—Low-salaried employees in 19 of the state's 2 welfare institutions today received $5-a-month pay increases, retroactive to Aug. 1.

The salary hikes, designed to stem the loss of employees to industry, affects approximately 3,000 workers receiving less than $77.50 monthly, exclusive of maintenance. Herbert R. Mooney, assistant welfare director estimated the increases would approximate $180,000 yearly.

Employees of the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus, London prison farm and Mansfield reformatory received no raises because their salaries are fixed by law.

Gov. Bricker in signing the pay order said the increases were intended to help workers meet increased living costs and "to induce many of them to remain in institutional service who may be planning to leave and possibly attract others into the service to fill 400 existing vacancies."

FIVE NOMINATED FOR HALL OF FAME

Additions To Be Made To O. S. U. Group.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 8—Four men and a woman have been nominated for election to Ohio State university's Journalism Hall of Fame.

They are Joseph W. Gray, Harry F. Harrington, Robert O. Ryder, William S. Soley and Zell Harrington.

Gray, who went to Cleveland in 1836 from Vermont, founded the Daily Plain Dealer in 1845 and remained its publisher and editor until his death in 1862.

Harrington got his early newspaper training on the Ohio State Journal at Columbus, then became a pioneer in the college journalism teaching field. He was dean of the Medill school at Northwestern university from 1921 until his death in 1938.

Ryder gained a national reputation as newspaper paragrapher and editorial writer during 32 years' service on the Ohio State Journal.

Sibley was operator of the Gallop Tribune 30 years and later wrote his famed "Along the Highway" column for the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Mrs. Deming, one of the few women publishers in the Ohio daily newspaper field, started as a writer on the Warren Tribune. She later became stockholder and eventually president and general manager and personally won membership for her newspaper in The Associated Press.

Nominations are made only from among newspaper personalities who have been dead five or more years. Sixty judges will vote on the nominees and those receiving at least a two-thirds vote of the 60 will be elected.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8—(Wide World)—One of the questions which puzzles livestock men—and one they don't like to answer—is, are we likely to have even as much beef next spring as we have now?

The question has been prompted by the present beef deficiency in many areas. Generally, it's expected this situation will improve in the autumn when more cattle should be coming to market.

But it's not at all assured that there won't be another beef shortage, and possibly a more severe one than now, some time next year.

8-Run Blast in Second Helps Pittsburgh Upset Cards

Boston Braves Also Turn in Surprise by Nosing Out Brooklyn, 2-1; Several Games Postponed.

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just when Pittsburgh fans were becoming resigned to having their Pirates finish in the second division of the National league and friends of Manager Frankie Frisch were feeling flustered about his future, the buccaners have launched a five-game winning streak.

They still are a good stone's throw from fourth place—five games—but last night they bumped out of the St. Louis Cardinals 13-6 with one devastating eight-run blast in the second inning and looked like a first division team.

This kept the Brooklyn Dodgers from losing any of their ample first place margin, although the champions were nosed out 2-1 in eleven innings by the usually docile Boston Braves.

The New York Giants downed the Philadelphia Phils 6-4 with a 14-hit attack that had plenty of authority. Carl Hubbell, veteran southpaw star of the Giants, won his seventh victory of the season.

In the only American league game the St. Louis Browns beat the Detroit Tigers 3-2 with Chet Laabs' 20th homer of the year helping provide the impetus.

Weather postponed the other games on the freak schedule, which originally called for one two-night and six night engagements.

Top 3 Places In Batting Averages Go To Milwaukee

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The first three places in the American association batting averages belonged to Milwaukee teammates in statistics computed through Wednesday, with Will Norman heading the list after vaulting to the top from eighth position a week ago.

Norman came up by collecting 15 hits in 32 trips to hike his average to .321. He was followed by the Brewers' Hal Peck and Ed Stanky, with .330 and .323, respectively. Joe Vosmik of Minneapolis, last week's leader, .322; Joe Bestul of Indianapolis, .320; Powell of St. Paul, and John Gazor of Louisville, .320, each; Heinz Becker, Milwaukee, .314; Wayne Blackburn, Indianapolis, .312; and Jim Grant, St. Paul, .308.

Norman also became the home run leader, smacking four of them during the week to bring his total to 20. Ab Wright of Minneapolis was second with 19, but his batting average was .287. Peck had the most hits, 144; Stanky led with 39 doubles, and Chuck Stevens of Toledo had 11 triples.

Bob Dillinger of Toledo and Ed Levy of Kansas City were the best base stealers, each with 18 to his credit.

Herb Karpel of Kansas City had the top pitching record by far, winning eight games and losing none. In 69 innings he had allowed 53 hits, 17 runs, 36 bases on balls and had struck out 33 batters.

Milwaukee headed the list in team batting with a .280 percentage, followed by Minneapolis with .263, and Toledo, Louisville and Indianapolis, all with .257.

Vance was a star of the Akron North state basketball champions in 1935; lettered in basketball and football; heldberg college and played a year as a coach at Sycamore.

RED BIRDS TIGHTEN GRIP ON TOP SPOT

Beat Brewers, 4 to 3, While Toledo Blanks Blues.

By The Associated Press

Having now feathered their nest atop the American association standings, the Columbus Red Birds have set about protecting it.

They further humiliated the Milwaukee Brewers last night with a 1-0 victory, while the Toledo Mud Hens were, batting down the Blues 3 to 0.

This left Columbus with a .544 percentage, Kansas City with .538, and Milwaukee and Minneapolis locked at .517.

Harry Brecheen weathered a 10-hit attack to get his 15th victory of the season for Columbus. Minneapolis downed Louisville, 3 to 2 in the opener of a doubleheader. The second game was called because of the weather.

Veteran Clay Smith twirled St. Paul to a 5-3 victory over Indianapolis, but the Indians sewed up the nightcap, 8 to 8.

Head of Umpiring Staff Predicts Al Barlick Will Be One of Best Umpires

Illinois Farm Boy Is Youngest Official in National League.

Wide World Features

The youngest member of the National league umpiring staff, Al Barlick, has the okay of the senior officer of the circuit's staff, William J. (Old Arbitrator) Klem. Al has more than the okay. He has the responsibility of making good Bill Klem's prediction, viz: "He's going to be the greatest umpire in baseball history."

The Arbitrator is quick to give the reasons for his estimate of Barlick:

"If Barlick's grandmother and his worst enemy were on opposite sides of the ball game, he would call everything the way he sees it."

Barlick, a farmer boy from mid-Illinois, climbed from Class D to the majors in 5 years, arriving at the age of 25. He umpired his first game of any kind on June 3, 1935, at Lincoln park, Springfield, in the Municipal league.

Al's first professional baseball connection was with the North-east Arkansas league in 1926. Followed two years in the Piedmont one in the Eastern, then two in the International.

A knee-injury to Klem himself was the immediate episode bringing Barlick to the National league in the fall of 40. It rounded out an eventual baseball season for him which began in January. He exhibition-toured Mexico and Central America for three months with a band of baseball barnstormers.

In action, Barlick moves, acts and operates like a rejuvenated Klem. There's a reason. When ball-players reported to the 1941 training camps, Barlick reported

"Keep 'Em Fishing" Is Motto of Seattle Men

Wide World Features

SEATTLE — Seattle sportsmen have turned the wartime motto to "keep 'em fishing."

An appeal for fishing tackle to provide recreation for service men in Alaska, where there's a heap more chance for fun at fishing than at night clubs, has brought in an array of tackle that would make a boy's or a salmon-snagging sergeant's eyes bulge.

Rods, reels, lines, plugs and leaders — just about everything but bent pins — are included in the collection that has flooded in since an appeal was issued to sportsmen.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, July 8.—Although most of last year's young big league players are in the service, Madison Square Garden is definitely counting on having pro hockey this winter. Hasn't been explained yet how teams will be rounded up, except that there will be plenty of 18 and 19 year old Canadian boys in the lineups. Anyway, the boys who make the arrangements have been given the go-ahead signal, and what goes for the Garden probably goes for the other national league cities.

The "Ice-Capades" open here Sept. 4—earliest on record—and the roller skating vanities start in Chicago Sept. 9 for a tour to the west coast. One reason for those fancy scores in the Canadian open is that practically all the U. S. pros are playing the small-sized ball, illegal here.

Today's Guest Star—Jack Charvat, Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune:

"Wire reports show that betting at Saratoga race track fell off more than 250,000 during the first six days of the current meeting. Track officials blame the lack of sucker play on bad weather and restricted traveling, but some New Yorkers claim folks are just getting smart."

Gridiron Grapevine—The army plebes should have a few kicks coming this year. Wayne Brown, who was an all-state back in Minnesota at 16 and headed for you-know-where, came east to Ansonia, Conn., a while back for ten days of tutoring from Rev. Arnold Fenton, the "punting parson."

Dr. Fenton tipped off Earl Blaik and now Wayne is a West Pointer. U. of Washington fans say watch for Fred Provo, soph. halfback, who is as hard to corner as a greased rabbit. After giving out with the usual quota of sobs, North Carolina's dope sheet tells something about the navy pre-flight school team and concludes: "The entire picture adds up to the fact that this fall Chapel Hill should be the football center of the south."

The county men's singles tournament will begin two weeks from Sunday, Aug. 23.

Fees for entry are as follows: Women's singles, 50 cents; men's doubles (per team), 60 cents; junior, 25 cents; men's singles, 60 cents; all other, 10 cents.

Records Tumble as Hawaiians Set Pace in National A. A. U. Swimming Contest

Nakama and Billy Smith Jr. Post New World and American Records in Connecticut Event.

By The Associated Press

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 8.—The annual revision of the record-book for swimming reaches its midway point today with two new figures already posted.

A pair of Hawaiians, Keo Nakama and Billy Smith Jr. started the 1942 National A. A. U. indoor tank meet off on the right tempo last night by rubbing out one world and one American record. And today, Smith and Adolph Kiefer of Chicago, are expected to do the record-breaking.

Smith, who plans to enter Ohio State university this fall, sped through 250 yards of blue-green water in the Ocean Beach park pool in 2:10.7 last night to erase the 2:13.1 mark set by Otto Jaretz of Chicago in 1940.

Nakama, now also a student at the Buckeye school, made a show of Jack Medina's eight-year-old mark in the mile, lowering the figures from 20:57.8 to 20:29.

Today Smith will focus his aim on the 440-yard free style standard with Nakama as a foe while Kiefer will strive to retain his 110-yard crown. Smith is the defending champion in the quartet mile event.

Other champions crowned on the opening day were Sammy Le of Pasadena, Calif., in the three meter drive and Ohio State's 330 yard medley relay team of Mark Follansbee, Jim Counsilman and Jack Hill.

Mexican Farmer Wins Bantam Title from Lou Salica

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8.—The New York bantamweight champion of the world is a 25-year-old Mexican who a few years ago picked beans in his native imperial valley of California for $2 a day.

The ex-beanpicker, Manuel Ortiz, lifted the bantamweight bauble off the weary brow of Lou Salica of New York last night in a 12-round decision that kept 6,000 fans alternately excited and bored.

The El Centro lad won going away, but the game little New Yorker, a veteran of more than 10 years in the prize ring, gave his best when he knew from the outset that his crown was slipping away from him.

He tried to fight in close and got whipped. He stood off and let fly from long range, and the long-armed Mexican boy slapped him across the ring. Referee Abe Roth and two ringside judges were unanimous in awarding the decision to Ortiz.

Mort Cooper May Be 1942 Strikeout King

ST. LOUIS — Mort Cooper may become a new strikeout king in the National league this year. Mort, St. Louis Cardinal ace, was the first man to chalk up his 50th, just a couple steps ahead of John Vander Meer, last year's monarch of the parent loop in whitening them.

Mort's top year in the majors to date was 1939, when he had 130, but at Houston the year before he totalled 201 in the Texas league before reporting to the Birds in September. That's only one short of the 202 by which the Cincy Reds' Double-No-Hit-Vandy led the National last season.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"YOU may not know the answer," I told the pseudo old man across the table from me, "but I am curious to know if you or your friends knows anything about a queer fan letter and water color drawing which Princess Olina recently received from some anonymous admirer."

Either he was a rarely gifted Theophrastus or he really knew nothing of the letter. I could tell nothing from his eyes, hidden by the colored glasses, but his facial expression and his voice held only puzzled surprise.

"Fan letter? Water color drawing?" he repeated. "No, I know nothing of anything like that. But pardon me, that expression 'fan letter' does not that refer to mail which a theatrical or radio performer receives?"

I looked at him with steady intentness.

"Do you know that Princess Olina is featured in one of the leading Broadway productions as a happy soloist?" I asked, and watched narrowly for his reaction to the question.

But his face registered only shocked surprise, and his words corroborated his facial expression.

"No, I did not know that," he said heavily. "I am almost totally ignorant of, or have no time for, the lighter things of life. But this will come as a great blow to my friend. To think of Princess Olina, the last of her royal line— for I fear her brothers are dead— being compelled to exhibit herself upon the stage!"

I would have staked much upon my conviction that this last choice specimen of sentimentality was spurious—thrown in to bolster his wished-for effect of surprise—and I could not resist giving him a cheap retort which, if I had been sure he meant the slur, I never would have thought of uttering.

"I do not consider that a calamity," I said icily. "It happens to be the author of the play in which Princess Olina is featured, and I can assure you that circumstances do not compel her to accept the role."

"Her mother recently was married to Philip Veritron, the famous impresario, who is producing the play, and who gave her the role because of her great talent. He is a very wealthy man, and he showers money and luxuries upon his wife and his step-daughter. No question of need is involved in her stage appearances."

His face betrayed distress now, and I maliciously welcomed his discomfort.

"I am afraid I have offended you," he said contritely, "but really I intended no offense. I realize your viewpoint and hers. It is only that I have not yet shed the reverence for royalty in which I was reared."

His speech made me distinctly ashamed of myself, and I made what hasty amends I could.

"You have not offended me in the least," I told him. "I admit I was a little startled at first, then I realized that you have a different background and viewpoint."

"Please think nothing more of it; but give me as quickly as possible the information you said you thought I ought to have. I am sorry to hurry you, but really I have not much time."

"Nor have I," he returned. "But this is something you must know."

"I have learned, no matter how that Princess Olina and her mother, Queen Olga, are in great danger. The men who have taken over Transylvania have sworn to exterminate every member of the royal family."

"They have not perfected an organization over here," he went on, "but they are in touch with other organizations already here. The queen and the princess should be carefully guarded."

"They have been closely guarded ever since their arrival in this country. I told him, 'But I shall report what you have told me to the proper authorities, and you may be sure that extraordinary precautions will be taken.'"

"That will be a great relief to my friend," he said. "And now, as I have told you what I thought you must know, I will conduct you back to your table. But first, if I should learn anything more, where could I find you, or rather, might I be permitted to find you?"

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Aug. 9

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds all the intimacies of a happy, prosperous and enjoyable day, with much festive celebration and merrymaking, probably in honor of a romantic or sentimental occasion. This should be indulged with unusual zest, albeit interrupted by a surprising occurrence.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of great enjoyment and happiness, in which some outstanding domestic, affectional, romantic or social event may demand paramount attention. However, any business in connection with such hospitality or celebration would prove profitable. The happy course of events might be temporarily interrupted by an untoward or sudden occurrence.

A child born on this day while having a profound and studious mentality may choose to devote itself to the pursuit of pleasure or the quest of happiness rather than exalted ambitions.

For Monday, Aug. 10, MONDAY'S astrological augury is for intriguing, irregular or unpredictable events of a surprising and probably dramatic nature. There are also undercurrents of mystery or novelty, which might be turned to good account by sound thinking or well-organized strategies. Secrecy prevails.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year of peculiarly subtle, novel and intriguing events and experiences, in which strange circumstances may be turned to successful and reasonable issues by shrewd, cautious and deep laid strategies.

A child born on this day may be gifted with talents of an exceptional or unique order, with subtlety, ingenuity and originality.
